Canadian Legion Holds Burns' Night

Saturday evening last was "Burns' Night" with the local branch of the Canadian Legion, and the members present thoroughly enjoyed the evening.

Mr. J. W. Munro, of Carstairs, gave an interesting talk on "Scotland's Bard," and Scotch songs were contributed by Jack Robertson, J. W. Munro and Harold Welsh. Dr. H. C. Liesemer officiated at the piano.

It was announced that the Rev. Archdeacon Swanson, of Calgary, will give an address at the next regular meeting.

Knox United Church Notes.

Services next Sunday will be at Westcott and town at the usual hours, when the pastor will conclude his sermon series on the Ten Commandments. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Six Nominated for Town Council and Four for School Board

Three Candidates for Town and Two for School Trustees Withdraw.

No Election Necessary.

The nominations on Monday for three vacancies in the town council, brought out six nominations: Dr. W. G. Evans, J. E. Gooder, J. E. Liesemer, W. McFarquhar, W. Pitt, and W. D. Spence.

Retiring councillors are J. E. Gooder, W. Pitt and W. D. Spence, all of whom are nominated for re-election.

Four nominations were received for the school board, to fill two vacancies: Dr. H. C. Liesemer, Rev. A. Traub, A. S. Gole and A. R. Kendrick. The first two are the retiring trustees.

On Tuesday, Dr. Evans and W. A. McFarquhar withdrew their nominations for the town council and on Wednesday J. E. Liesemer withdrew. This left the retiring councillors Gooder, Pitt and Spence as the only candidates and therefore they are elected by acclamation.

Two of candidates for school trustees, Mr. S. Gole and Kendrick also withdrew, making an election unnecessary, the retiring trustees, Dr. Liesemer and Rev. Traub being elected by acclamation.

At the Movies.

Tonight (Thursday) Grace Moore in her wonderful picture, "One Night of Love." This is the most glorious musical romance of all time. We have seen the picture and can recommend it as one of the best musical pictures ever produced.

On Saturday, by special request, a return engagement of "School For Girls."

Next Wednesday and Thursday: Barbara Stanwyck plays her first comedy role in "Red Salute," the rollicking Reliance comedy.

As Drue Van Allen, a madcap college girl, she meets a series of thrilling and amusing adventures when she is stranded across the Mexican border with a young buck private, played by Robert Young.

Barbara is said to give the best performance of her career in this Edward Small production, presented by Harry M. Goetz.

The laugh-loaded story is an original by Humphrey Pearson and the screen play was prepared by the author in collaboration with Manuel Seff.

Hardie Albright, Ruth Donnelly, Cliff Edwards, Gordon Jones, Paul Stanton and Purnell Pratt, are also prominent in the cast of "Red Salute," released through United Artists.

Knox United Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Knox United Church was held last Monday evening, and in spite of the severe weather there was a fair attendance of town members of the congregation. The reports of the different departments revealed that the church work was progressing satisfactorily, and their finances were in a healthy condition.

It was decided that a little more attention would be given to the Church Building Fund, so as to gradually retire the church debt. Anniversary services in future will have a definite appeal for this special fund.

Despite the difficulties of the year and adverse crop conditions, the grand total from all departments reached the figure of $2650.00. In his remarks the pastor thanked all the officers and workers of the church especially Mr. J. A. McGhee, chairman of the board of managers and Mr. J. W. Halton, sec. treas., who retire this year. He also made a strong appeal for systematic giving by use of the church envelopes.

New appointments to the board of managers to fill vacancies were: Messrs W. A. Austin, W. D. Spence and H. W. Chambers.

At the close of the meeting there was a social hour, at which the ladies served lunch.

Evangelical Church Notes

"The Seed of the Hour" will be the sermon subject Sunday morning and in the evening, "Dr. Luke—His Life and Work," will be the subject.

WEEKLY SERMONETTE

"It is the heart—rather than the hand—that sins."

Annual Meeting Well Attended

The annual meeting of the town and the annual school meeting, which were held in the High School on Friday evening, were very well attended.

Mayor Chambers presided and reported that the town was in a very healthy financial condition, having a balance on hand of $14,991.08 at the end of the year. He explained that $2500.00 had been appropriated from the surplus to maintain the present low rate of taxation, and said that the policy of the council was to appropriate from the surplus to maintain low taxes until conditions improved.

J. E. Gooder, chairman of the public works committee, in his report, stated that $1863.13 had been expended on streets and of that amount $1416.67 had been applied on arrears of taxes, only $446.46 being paid out in cash. He stated that it had been the policy of the committee to have as much work as possible applied on taxes.

Councillors Pitt, Reiber and Budgeon also reported on their various committees.

The financial report and the reports of the committees were adopted.

Mr. A. Schwesinger moved a vote of confidence in the council, which was passed almost unanimously.

The mayor vacated his seat to Dr. H. C. Liesemer, who called the meeting to order for the school reports. The secretary's report showed that the school had made excellent progress and that after drilling a new well and making improvements to the school, the treasurer had a balance on hand of $2951.59.

Mr. J. E. Liesemer criticised the board on their action in engaging teachers last summer.

A vote of confidence in the school board was moved and passed, with one dissenting vote.

What About Immigration?

The question of encouraging and permitting immigration to Western Canada is again looming on the horizon after a hiatus of six or seven years in the flow of new settlers to this country from Great Britain and some of the European countries.

With the agricultural and economic depression of the past few years still laying a heavy hand on the peoples of the prairie provinces and with the shadow of half a dozen years of widespread unemployment and direct relief not yet obliterated, colonization schemes, with Western Canada as one of the objectives, are being considered and launched on both sides of the Atlantic.

In the British House of Commons a motion was adopted in late December inviting the House to take prompt steps to survey the possibility of emigration within the Empire and the Under-secretary for Foreign Affairs announced the government's decision to appoint an Empire Settlement Board of eight members and its acceptance of the report of an inter-departmental committee for overseas settlements.

On this side of the ocean, public announcement was recently made of the promotion, presumably by private interests, of a colonization scheme, under which it is proposed to bring out for settlement on purchased land in Saskatchewan, one hundred families of experienced farmers from the County of Derby, England, accompanied by an intimation that this is but the precursor of a number of similar colonies.

Under this scheme, British capital, it was reported, is investing sufficient money to purchase 100 quarter sections of land at $20 an acre, farm implements, livestock and machinery to the extent of $12,500 per family. The money is to be treated as a revolving fund, for, according to press reports: "Each year they (the immigrants) will repay part of what they make from crops. At the end of five years they are supposed to have saved enough to be able to leave the colony and buy farms for themselves. The county authorities in England will make a loan equal to what has been saved so as to enable the purchase of farm and equipment. When they leave, their places will be taken by other British emigrants."

The plan, it is reported, contemplates safeguard to prevent the migrants becoming a charge on the country during their five year apprenticeship period and their activities are to be supervised.

Without taking cognizance of the possible ultimate fate of a percentage of the beneficiaries under such a project, the effect of colonization of new settlers on the welfare of established farmers, of the agricultural industry in the west and of the country, under this or any other immigration plan, at the present time and under existing conditions, is worthy of serious consideration on the part of the provincial and Dominion authorities, before sanction to such plans is given, or, in fact, to immigration generally.

It must not be forgotten that the immediate future of agriculture in the prairie provinces is somewhat doubtful with export markets for hard spring wheat contracting, with consumption tending to decline in Canada's best wheat market and with, as yet, no new markets opened up.

Thus, the farmers on the land now in the prairie provinces are more than able to take care of the existing market for their major export product and to bring in others to compete with them in this particular product does not appear to be a reasonable act.

There appears to be some hope of expanding markets for some other exportable agricultural products which can be produced on the prairies, principally livestock and livestock products, but, so far, these markets have not been sufficiently developed to warrant increased production by adventurous methods. The trend rather is in the direction of improvement in quality and assurance of regularity of supply. Until this has been achieved and markets for such products broadened because of it, it is reasonable to suppose that farmers already on the land can take care of the demand. As for other agricultural products which must be confined to local markets, everybody knows that the capacity of these markets is so limited at present, and likely to be for some time to come, that their requirements can easily be cared for without bringing in new settlers to increase production.

Until these problems are in a fair way to be solved and farmers already established in the country have had a reasonable opportunity to at least partially rehabilitate themselves and recover some of their lost ground, the wisdom of bringing in new settlers, no matter how desirable the type, is open to serious question.

Certainly the rural sections of the west cannot be expected to welcome new immigrants with open arms, and it is equally certain that the urban centres, who are busily engaged in assisting former farm residents to get back on the land or return to the countries of their origin, will look askance at any proposal to establish more new settlers from overseas.

Tickets As Gifts

English Railways Had Novel Idea For Holiday Season

A new stunt to encourage railway travel and the traditional pantomimes in London marked the Christmas season in the United Kingdom.

In the industrial north and on the Clyde where business has showed marked improvement, it was one of the happiest celebrations in years.

First place among Christmas novelties must be given to the British railways which made arrangements for the sale of tickets in advance which could be sent to passengers. The companies also undertook to enclose a special Christmas greeting card devised to hold the tickets so distributed.

The schemes, for instance, enabled people living in the North of England who desired their friends in the South to visit them for the festive season, to purchase the railway tickets in advance and forward them as Christmas or New Year gifts. 2133

A Soviet Hollywood

Film Industry To Be Developed In Southern Russia

Hal Rosen, Hollywood cameraman who is filming Shakespeare's "As You Like It," featuring Elizabeth Bergner, will explore Russia and the Orient for film prospects on his way round the world and back home.

"The Russian government has invited me to Russia when I am through with this picture," Hal said. "Construction of a gigantic 'Soviet Hollywood' is to start early next year.

"I think there may be a great future for Russian films. In the silent days they produced some of the most beautiful I have seen.

"England to-day can produce pictures as good, on an average, as America, but the equipment is bad. For instance, a picture like 'Broadway Melody of 1936' could never be turned out in England."

The new film city in Russia is to be located in the semi-tropical south. More than 9,000 people, according to B. Z. Shumilsky, chief of the Soviet cinema industry, will engage in film production. It will not be ready until the summer of 1937.

Europe In Arms

Nations Of The Continent Could Muster Millions Of Soldiers

The veteran Austrian military expert, General Alex. Alexin, estimated that the leading nations of the continent of Europe could muster 35,000,000 soldiers for instant service in case of an emergency.

In a statement published in the Vienna weekly "Sunday and Monday Newspaper," General Alexin estimated forces subject to immediate call as follows: Russia, 13,000,000; Italy, 6,500,000; Germany, 6,000,000; France 5,800,000; Poland, 3,500,000.

He said his country frankly took up rearmament in 1935 as the "only feasible policy for Austria," and that the nation could now muster 500,000 men if a sudden war developed.

Heroine Of Australia Dead

Earned Name By Rescuing Crew Of Wrecked Ship

The "Grace Darling" of Western Australia, Mrs. Grace Vernon Drake-Brockman, mother of Judge Drake-Brockman and Lady Moulden, of Adelaide, died at the age of 75. She earned her name, when as a young girl she was riding on horseback searching for cattle, she saw the sailing vessel Georgette pounding to pieces in the surf on the coast. She and a native boy who was with her rescued the ship's company by riding their horses into the surf and bringing people ashore. She was later awarded the Royal Humane Medal and a gold watch and chain from the British Government.

Requested Burial At Sea

In her will Mrs. Elizabeth Millidge Goldie of Kings' Rd., Richmond, England, directed that she should be cremated and that her ashes together with those of "my husband, and also my wedding ring, my gold keeper ring, and my silver wedding ring, shall be placed in the same weighted box as my husband's, taken out in a boat and cast into the sea off the coast of North Berwick."

Aged Doctor Learns Braille

Favorite Pastime Will Remain With Him When Sight Fails

Anticipating complete blindness, Dr. John H. Lacy, 80-year-old colorful Arizona pioneer, is learning to read Braille so that when blindness comes he still will be able to enjoy his favorite amusement—reading.

Dr. Lacy, an Army and Indian Service physician for years, and a superior court bailiff for the past 10 years, began study of the Braille system four months ago when he began to have difficulty reading, even with a powerful reading glass. He still is able to walk about the streets alone, however.

The physician went to Arizona in 1885 from Virginia. He then was a physician in the army. He later practiced privately in Arizona towns. He has been retired for 20 years.

As a boy, he learned to talk with his fingers to inmates of a school for the deaf and dumb near his home. Later, while in the army, he became an expert telegrapher.

He took his medical degree at the College of Hampton Sidney in Prince Edward County, Va., where his grandfather was president of the college 100 years ago.

Business In Vienna

Merchants In Austrian City Are Not Very Progressive

Viennese businessmen aren't the world's most progressive. There's not one halfway decent department store in town. Many stores will sacrifice a considerable sale rather than go to the trouble of delivering. Recently the Chamber of Commerce refused to let a Woolworth open, fearing it would be prejudicial to established firms.

The Hapsburgs are drifting back: Archduke Anton, who married Ilana of Roumania; Archduke Eugene; and Archduke Karl, who is the only one to have his name in the phone book. Also in the phone book, however, is another Hapsburg, at present the one most conspicuous in the public eye—one of the city's biggest laundries. "Let Hapsburg do your washing" is a line seen on billboards and in newspapers everywhere.

Big Radium Shipment

Large Consignment Is Purchased By The Ontario Government

Thirty-five little wooden boxes each containing about $4,400 worth of radium from Great Bear lake were in Ontario department of health laboratories as delivery was made of the largest single shipment of radium ever produced in Canada. The boxes contained a total of 3,500 milligrams of radium, which will cost the Ontario government approximately $155,000. The supply will go to the Toronto general hospital to replace 3½ grams which have been rented from a New York firm.

Highway Safety

Plea Is Made To Eliminate Loss Of Life From Motor Accidents

Premier A. A. Dysart, who has jurisdiction over New Brunswick's highways, thinks highway safety might be impressed upon traffic offenders when they come to court by showing them motion pictures of wrecked machines and injured people.

A plea to eliminate loss of life on the nation's highways in 1936 went out to Canadians from Hon. C. D. Howe, federal minister of railways, and ministers with jurisdiction over highways of four provinces.

Impressed with the growing toll of highway fatalities, Premier Dysart of New Brunswick; Hon. T. B. McQuesten, highways minister for Ontario; Hon. W. R. Clubb, minister of public works and labor in Manitoba; and Hon. W. A. Fallow, Alberta minister of public works, joined with Mr. Howe in messages urging highway safety.

Recalling the federal government, the railways and municipalities had in the past quarter of century spent a total of $36,000,000 for protecting level crossings, Mr. Howe said the work must be continued and extended as the public interest required "but as the toll of death and injury in motor accidents continued to mount it becomes increasingly evident that the crux of the problem is not so much the level crossing but along the highways themselves."

Scientists Say This Year Will Bring More Sunspots And Trouble May Result

Crops should be smaller, people more irritable and radio reception worse in 1936 than in 1935 if scientists have plotted correctly the number of spots due to pock the surface of the sun next year.

With long-range telescopes, astronomers have studied sunspots for several centuries and year by year they become more convinced of their demeritizing influence on every form of life on earth. One of the chief centres of study is the Dominion observatory at Ottawa.

The year 1936 will find sunspots increasing in number. This should produce more rain in the Maritimes and along the Pacific coast in British Columbia but less in Ontario, the prairies and inland Quebec. There should be lower temperatures throughout the country, more cloudy days, fewer thunderstorms, more northern lights, more electrical disturbances to radio waves.

When sunspots are on the increase, the health of man and animals falls off. If western wheat farmers are to have less rainfall in 1936 and consequently a smaller crop, they can draw satisfaction from the prediction there will be less grasshoppers than in 1935. If the year runs true to form, there will be less rabbits, grouse, partridges and other game.

The influence of sunspots on health has not been plotted with any degree of accuracy but scientists are convinced there is a connection between them. The years 1917 and 1918, the world-wide influenza plagues, saw sunspots reach the highest number since the turn of the century. Scientists believe the same electrical disturbance that throws your radio out of gear, also causes your nerves to go jittery, making you irritable.

Sunspots are really storm centres, whirling around in the hot, solar gases. Surrounding them are large areas of bright clouds, rich emitters of ultra-violet light. Scientists believe the link between sunspots and meteorological conditions on the earth lies in the waxing and waning of the ultra-violet rays from the sun. It has been determined lately the sun emits more ultra-violet light when sunspots are numerous than when they are scarce.

Protecting The Buffalo

Indians Engaged To Restore Herds To U.S. West

Another step toward restoring a semblance of the once-mighty bison herds that ranged the mountains and prairies of southern Montana, 100 of these animals, shipped from Yellowstone National park, have been turned out in the Crow Indian reservation, south of Billings, Mont.

The buffalo, held in huge crates, were hauled in trucks from Lamar, in the park, to the vicinity of the Big Horn canon, where they were released. The first shipment consisted of 28 bison, taken from the park herd during a round-up of about half of the 1,000 animals ranging in the national playground.

Last year 113 bison were similarly removed to the Crow country under a plan worked out by Robert Yellowstone, superintendent of the reservation, who was chosen for the office by the Indians from among the leaders of the tribe. Natural increase has brought this number to 150.

"We have just completed a fence made completely of logs, which encloses a land-locked area, faced on three sides by precipitous rock walls, enclosing an area which will support about 1,000 head winter and summer," Yellowstone explained.

"The buffalo will use the deep canons which heretofore have been wasted feed. Whenever the herd overflows this area, we have another land-locked range we can put them into. I am sure that the Indians demonstrated to the country at large that we are safe and proper persons to entrust the protection of wild life to, including buffalo, elk and other animals."

Cod Liver Oil Paint

Fishermen All Help When Church Is Short Of Finances

A fishermen's church for generations, St. James United church, Sambro, N.S., has the nautical touch down to walls painted with cod liver oil as it celebrates its 125th anniversary in this community of fisherfolk.

Founded in 1810, it has served first the Methodists and then in the United Church of Canada. Preachers and congregations have come and gone, but the tiny church has stood.

Though the going was sometimes hard in that century and a quarter, it struck no serious snag until last year. Then, with the church half covered, the paint gave out. There was no money, and it looked as though the building were to remain mottled until funds were raised.

But the fishermen were not stumped. Someone found some red ochre. Others turned over cod liver oil they were saving for market. Mixed, the two were just the thing. And the painting went on.

Now, the church spire points into the sky from Graveyard Point proudly as ever, beacon for the fishermen as they come in from the Atlantic. Inside, Rev. F. W. Mitchinson, student minister from Flat Islands, Nfld., conducts services and supervises the night school classes that are held twice a week.

Grateful for the lessons, the fishermen are getting up a new scheme to free the church of financial worries when painting time rolls around again. They plan to donate one of their lobster pots apiece to the church, and to give it all revenue from that pot.

Bible Is Valuable Relic

A 14th Century Edition Contains Many Typographical Errors

A typographical error, one of many in a 14th century edition of the Bible, is the reason why that edition has been called the "Vinegar Bible," it was revealed on the 400th anniversary of the first English printing of the Book of Books.

Chapter XX., St. Luke, bears the heading "the parable of the Vinegar" instead of "the parable of the Vineyard." Numerous other misprints were made throughout the edition.

A copy of that particular Bible, one of the few in this state, was presented by "His Gracious Majesty King George II." to the Old North church (Christ church). It is the object of intense interest of sightseers as it reclines, preserved for posterity, in a glass-enclosed stand in front of the church.

The printing was the work in 1717 by John Baskett and was later styled "a basket-ful of errors."

However, the edition surpasses every previous one for beauty in engravings and initials.

Year Of Good Will

Japanese Welcomed 1936 As Year Of The Mouse

Japanese all over the world celebrated the end of the year of the boar—a year of fierce aggressiveness, and greeted the year of the mouse—a year of kindness and good will.

Each year in a 12-year cycle is named for a different animal. Thus, 1936, the year of the mouse, will be followed by years of the cow, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, bird, dog and then boar, again.

A new year means to the Japanese the start of a new life. All business except the most necessary was suspended entirely for two weeks, during which Japanese called on their friends every day to share the sacred otowa a sweet sake (rice wine), dedicated to the most important of Japanese holidays.

Use Of Honey In Cooking

May Be Used To Replace Sugar In Practically All Recipes

Before the introduction of cane sugar, honey was apparently the only sweet available for human use in most civilized countries and as such was eagerly sought for and very highly prized. At the present time, however, the per capita consumption of sugar is approximately 50 times greater than that of honey. This difference is rather surprising when one considers the comparative food value of the two products, to say nothing of the fact that sugar is being imported, while honey is being exported. Sugar, of course, is largely used in the manufacture of other food products and for sweetening purposes, while honey is most commonly used as a spread to replace jams, jellies, marmalades or syrups. It is rather unfortunate that few housewives realize the fact that honey may be used in whole or in part to replace the sugar required in practically all recipes, and that when it is so used certain qualities are imparted to the final product that sugar cannot give. In experimental work on the uses of honey in cooking, done by the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, it was found that cakes, cookies, etc., made with honey remained fresh and moist for a much longer period than when sugar was used, and, where mild flavoured honeys were used to replace the sugar, the flavour of the finished product was much improved. When honey is used to replace sugar in any recipe, it must be remembered that approximately one-fifth of the honey is water, therefore the liquid portion of the recipe must be reduced by one-fifth. Another point to bear in mind is that the sweetening power of honey is at least equal to that of an equal quantity of sugar. This is important when replacing sugar with honey in the making of soft drinks, ice cream, candies or like products. Honey can also be successfully used in the making of marmalades and jellies, and also in the canning and preserving of fruits. Those interested in the use of honey in the home should apply to the Publicity and Extension Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, for a copy of Pamphlet No. 161 N.S., entitled "Honey and Some of The Ways It May Be Used."

Whole Town Worked

"We must have a swimming pool," declared the people of Lipp Springs, a health resort in Western Germany, "Right," agreed the burgomaster. "There's no money so we'll dig it ourselves." The entire population queued up for picks and shovels and set to work. And now Lipp Springs has its swimming pool.

"Oh, Bobbie! Just look at what the puppy has done to this room!"

"Isn't it wonderful, mamma. And in less than five minutes!"

Must Wage Ruthless War Between Humanity And Insects, Says Entomologist

Lightning Rods Give Protection

Electrical Wizard Says Closing Windows During Storm Safe Thing To Do

It may be old-fashioned to believe in lightning rods and shut your windows when a thunderstorm threatens, but it is a safe thing to do, according to Karl B. McEachron, who directs research into lightning in a laboratory at Pittsfield, Mass.

McEachron, while visiting Portland, explained that lightning follows the line of least resistance so readily that a well grounded lightning rod is about the most efficient simple protection obtainable. A good rod is 95 per cent. efficient, five per cent. being discounted due to the fact that lightning does not always strike the highest point.

The electrical wizard explained that the ancient theory of closing windows to keep lightning from being blown in, advocated sternly by our grandmothers, has proved to have some scientific backing.

Pictures taken of discharges show that when a wind of 45-miles-an-hour velocity is blowing, the lightning is blown to one side about 60 feet.

The great damage from lightning is done by the tremendous speed of discharge, which builds up terrific pressures, McEachron explained. Voltages from 200,000,000 volts upward with amperages that reach a limit of 200,000 amperes have been measured. When such a charge strikes, it literally blows things to pieces.

Fate Of Old Windmill

Built 137 Years Ago Will Likely Be Demolished

Built in 1799, and believed to be the only complete example of its kind near London, the windmill at Uppminster is for sale and possible demolition. Mr. Abraham, the last of the millers to work this ancient windmill, still climbs the worn steps into the loft, a journey he estimates he has made daily 30 times for 63 years. Should the mill—which now has bricks around it instead of crops—be pulled down, Mr. Abraham will suffer a heavy blow, for it has been worked by members of his family for many years, his father having taken over from his grandfather. London Daily Sketch.

Western Wool Clip

The quality of the 1935 Canadian western wool clip is reported as being particularly good and consignments for shipment to Great Britain via the Panama canal are slightly larger than a year ago.

Pillows That "Put On The Dog"

Household Arts by Alice Brooks

Just One Big Patch of Applique

PATTERN 5508

"Putting on the dog" is now the favorite pastime in applique, since someone started this new and amusing fad for canine pillows. Both sealyham and terrier require but one big patch of applique apiece, and then the fun begins! Applied with single stitch, you'll be surprised how soft and furry an effect you can create, in the way of outlines, spots and shadings. It's very easy to do, too.

In pattern 5508 you will find a transfer pattern of a dog 11 x 13 1/2 inches and one 8 x 10 1/2 inches; material requirements; color suggestions; illustrations of all stitches needed.

To obtain this pattern send 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave., E., Winnipeg.

There is no Alice Brooks pattern book published

A great war, a world-wide, ruthless, persistent menace to humanity between human beings and insects, is going on.

"Insects are as a group the most dangerous of all animals. They are, in fact, man's chief competitors for the supremacy of the earth," according to Arthur Gibson, Dominion entomologist, head of the entomological division, department of agriculture.

This division constitutes in Canada the spearhead of federal attack on insects which live by destroying grains, fruits, vegetables, forest trees and even domestic animals absolutely essential to human life. These insects are "direct and relentless competitors for nearly every one of the necessities of life."

The insect menace is greater today than in any period of past history, according to authorities in Ottawa. For the growth of the menace in Canada, Canadian people are themselves partially to blame. Forests have been cut and destroyed. Consequently the birds and other animals which prey upon insects have decreased in number. Similar crops have been grown over large areas year after year enabling insects which formerly fed upon native vegetation to change their habits and wax fat upon new food plants.

Annual devastation in Canada alone from insect pests is considerably over $100,000,000, according to the entomological division. Some years it is far above this. Every now and then insects stage a spectacular attack on humanity which serves to bring the menace to attention in a drastic manner. Grasshoppers, for instance, sweep over western Canadian grain fields leaving them in ruins. The codling moth takes toll of Ontario orchards to the extent of $2,000,000 a year. At present the spruce sawfly is causing incalculable damage to the wonderful evergreens of Gaspé and sweeping on toward forests of Quebec and Ontario.

These are just a very few specimens. Federal and provincial government officials are thoroughly alive to the danger. With such resources as are available, they go on fighting an army of numberless enemies which breed with tremendous rapidity. It is estimated at least 70,000,000 bushels of the 1934 Canadian wheat crop were saved when provincial and federal authorities co-operated to meet the grasshopper plague. By the end of 1934, the grasshoppers were dwindling.

But the menace is everywhere. More than 600,000 different kinds of insects have been studied and classified. Probably as many more distinct species await classification. They hold by far the predominating position in the animal kingdom.

Consider The Horse

Motor Drivers Should Never Cut In Front Of Moving Load

The Boston Traveler, out of the kindly heart of its editor, gave its readers the following last month in display type:

Those of us who drive automobiles should never cut in front of a moving horse.

The horse's big job is getting his load started. Once inertia is overcome, the horse (on level ground) has merely to keep a bit of a strain on the pull.

When we force a horse to stop, we throw the weight of the load against him. This is tough on the horse. Then he has to get that load into motion again. All this effort in addition to the fright we probably give him.

It is easy for us to stop and start our cars.

Let's do it.

When Noah sailed the ocean blue, He had his troubles same as you. He drove and drove and drove his ark Until he found a place to park.

The cooking banana is similar in appearance to the ordinary eating banana, but usually is larger and has a more pronounced stem.

"Grain Forum" Radio Programs

The Grain Forum radio speech contest is attracting a very great deal of interest in the country. Judges who have consented to select the prize winners are: Professor A. Savage, B.S.A., D.V.M., M.R.C.V.S., Dean of the department of agriculture, University of Manitoba; L. T. Chapman, B.S.A., Editor, "Nor-West Farmer"; P. M. Abel, Associate Editor, "Country Guide."

Programs will be broadcast every Tuesday night, commencing February 4, over the following Alberta stations:

CFCN Calgary 8 till 8:30 M.S.T.
CJCA Edmonton " "
CJOC Lethbridge " "

During the ensuing few weeks the following subjects are down for discussion:

Feb. 11, "The Country Elevator"

Feb. 18, "Some Wheat Problems" — an informal discussion between Major H. G. L. Strange and L. W. Brockington.

Feb. 25, "The Canada Grain Act"

Mar. 3, "The Futures Market"

A large number of queries have been received on problems of grain marketing and grain growing. All are answered and many of the more interesting are answered over the air. This feature of question and answer is proving very attractive.

Many Uses for Central Alberta Pavilion & Community Hall

The last few years have seen very rapid development in practical education and training for boys and girls, and the large new government building at Lacombe will be very useful in connection with the many branches of this work.

One of the most practical and hence most popular branches is the School Fair. This large building at Lacombe will provide a place at which the outstanding prize-winners at the school fairs may come together for a grand championship contest in both exhibiting and judging.

With the large numbers of purebred hares, cattle and swine available, as well as high class grain and seeds of many varieties, the Experimental Station at Lacombe is a meeting place for judging classes from boys' and girls' clubs from a wide area. Almost every Saturday some class visits the station, and the elimination contests for Central Alberta are held annually at Lacombe. Instructors, as well as boys and girls, will welcome a large, well lighted and comfortably heated judging pavilion in the new building.

On many occasions over a thousand people have attended the various field days held at the station. Unfortunately, on several occasions these field days have been largely spoiled by wet weather. The large new building will be very useful in these emergencies.

This large new auditorium will be verily a place "where town and country meet," and the citizens of Central Alberta can get together to study and solve their mutual problems and to learn to know and enjoy meeting each other.

Westcott Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. McFarlane on Thursday, January 30. Mrs. J. H. Robertson accepted the position of secretary in place of Mrs. Jacobsen, who had sent in her resignation. Miss Ruth Johnston, of the Didsbury Hospital, gave a paper on the "Care of the Sick Person at Home," demonstrating the correct way to make a bed for same. Mrs. Roland Webster read a paper for Mrs. Ed. Owens, unavoidably absent, which was an introduction to legislation dealing with State Medicine. The hostess conducted a very interesting and amusing contest on who could write the best four lines of poetry. The meeting opened with the singing of the late beloved Sovereign's favorite hymn, "Abide With Me," and before singing "God Save the King," the members pledged their love and loyalty to King Edward the Eighth. Lunch was served by the hostess.

Owing to the severity of the weather the United Church Concert and Minstrel Show has been postponed!

Largest Radium Deposit

South America Now Thought To Hold World's Greatest Quantity

Dr. Otto Vogt Von Sickingen, Haverford, Pa., bacteriologist, has discovered what he believes to be the largest radium deposit in the world along the Corentyn river in South America.

On his arrival in Boston, he declined to disclose the exact location of the deposit until terms are agreed upon with the government in whose territory it is centred. The Corentyn river borders Dutch and British Guiana.

Dr. Von Sickingen also said he had discovered a possible cure for infantile paralysis in a drug prepared by boiling the skin of a South American reptile.

Historic Scene Reconstructed

Royal Bank Calendar Depicts Opening Of Canada's First Railroad

Was Canada's first railroad opened in 1836 or 1837? Were the cars hauled by a locomotive or by horses on the inaugural run? How big was the locomotive and did it break down or not?

These and many similar questions which have centred around the opening of Canada's first railroad a century ago find their answer in a new calendar just issued by The Royal Bank of Canada. Executed by Sheriff Scott, one of Canada's foremost painters of historic subjects, this year's calendar picture depicts the colourful scene at Laprairie when the first train of the Champlain & St. Lawrence Railroad steamed out on her inaugural run.

On many important aspects of this opening ceremony, on the character of the locomotive itself and even on the events which transpired, historians differ. Indeed, some doubt has hitherto existed as to the exact date of the opening of this short fifteen mile line between Laprairie, Que., and St. Johns near the head of Lake Champlain.

Faced with these difficulties and in order to ensure the accuracy of this year's painting, The Royal Bank went to original sources. For the actual dimensions and structural details of the "Dorchester" which hauled the first train, the artist used the actual working drawings supplied by the firm of Robert Stephenson & Company of Great Britain, from whose shops the "Dorchester" came early in 1836. For reliable information on the events of the day, reference was made to the yellowing files of the Montreal "Courier" and "Gazette" for July 23, 1836, which carried complete eyewitness accounts.

These accounts demonstrated clearly that the actual opening ceremony took place on Thursday, July 21, 1836, and that the locomotive "Dorchester", contrary to the generally held belief, did actually haul the train on that occasion. They also revealed that prominent amongst those present were the Governor-General, the Earl of Gosford, Sir George Gipps, veteran of the Peninsula War and Sir Charles Grey, formerly a supreme judge of the Court of Madras. These three had come to Canada in 1835 as a commission to enquire into the grievances that were agitating the colony and which were soon to culminate in open rebellion. Peter McGill, chairman of the railway company, and later mayor of Montreal was also present.

The story, as it appeared in the "Gazette" of a hundred years ago, is reproduced in essence on the calendar pad. The relative dimensions of the "Dorchester" and a locomotive of the present day are also provided and strikingly demonstrate the pygmy size of Canada's first passenger locomotive. Somewhat larger than a Ford, a grown man could easily see over the boiler of the "Dorchester". She was only 13' 16" long as compared with the 90 foot giants commonly used to-day by both Canadian railways. And yet, for all her diminutive size, she performed heroic service and over a fifteen weeks' period in her first year of operation, she travelled 8,600 miles and hauled 15,929 passengers besides freight.

Additional interest is given to this year's calendar picture by the fact that plans are now going forward for a centenary celebration next July.

Has Become Linguist

Toronto Newsie Picks Up Smattering Of Six Languages

This business of riding up and down the country's railroads, peddling pop and peanuts, has developed Harry Hill, Toronto veteran newsagent, into somewhat of a linguist.

Hill, who at present travels on the Canadian National Railway train between Windsor and Toronto, has picked up a smattering of six different languages, not including English, during his 28 years of railroading.

The genial, white-haired Hill can peddle his wares in French, Russian, Ukrainian, Polish, Chinese and Iroquois. Endowed with a wonderful memory he memorizes whole sentences after hearing them once or twice.

He has travelled all through the Maritimes and as far west as Winnipeg and it was during the hey-day of immigration when the peoples of many nations were flocking into this country that he first acquired a flair for languages.

"I found these different races were delighted and pleased that somebody could understand and converse with them in their own tongue," reminisced Hill.

Hill got his first taste of railroading when he became a "red-cap." Today, if he had the means to retire he says he would enroll at some school of languages and improve his knowledge of those tongues he already knows.

A Matter Of Economy

Italians Close Famous Swimming Pool In Order To Save

The new municipal indoor swimming pool at Milan, reputed to be one of the three finest in the world has been ordered closed during the present national crisis in order to effect economies in light, power and heating.

The swimming pool was opened in October, 1934, and occupies an entire building newly erected on the site of the old railroad station torn down four years ago.

It has an electrically operated sectional sliding roof of translucent glass, a visitors' gallery of concrete similar to a grandstand which surrounds the pool itself, and 1,000 small individual dressing rooms.

It was an electrically operated aquatic fans could disport there winter and summer because an elaborate heating system kept the water at a pleasantly cool temperature the year round.

Think And Grow Strong

Doctor Proves That Teachers Are Stronger Than Their Pupils

Think and grow physically strong. Exercise of the gray matter in the brain is the best way to develop a strong body, said Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers, director of physical education at Boston University.

Using a manometer, or "grip-tester," Dr. Rogers examined students and teachers, businessmen and laborers. The teachers, he found, were stronger than their pupils, despite their less active physical life and their age disadvantage. The businessmen, he said, were stronger than the laborers.

Thinking is fundamentally the act of co-ordinating the muscle cells, Dr. Rogers said, the act of co-ordinating the muscle cells strengthens the body.

Tennyson's Home For Rent

House At Farringford Always Associated With His Works

Tennyson's home at Freshwater, in the Isle of Wight, is for rent. It has long been a shrine to which many journey.

At Farringford, the name of the place, just off the main road from Freshwater to Alum Bay, sheltered by fine old trees which the poet loved and immortalized in his verse, he did much of his best work. Its name is irrevocably associated with his, for it was during the last 40 years of his life—his period of residence there—that he acquired his prestige. The poet's connection with Farringford dates from November, 1853, when he rented it. Three years afterward he bought the house and estate outright.

One-Man Submarines

Being Manufactured In Scotland For Peaceful Purposes Only

Manufacture of one man submarines has just been started in Glasgow, Scotland. They will cost $150,000 and will be for peaceful purposes and not for armament. The submarine is capable of traveling on the surface at a fast speed, and lowering, rising, and going forward or astern while under the water. It is fitted with a lighting set, which enables the occupant to conduct a close examination of anything under the water. The submarine will be used mainly for inspecting wrecks and supervising salvage work, and also for taking photographs at the bottom of the ocean.

A Star Attraction

Dionne Quintuplets Bring Money To Ontario Government

The Dionne quintuplets, who brought money to many during 1935, did grandly by the Ontario government, the province's hotel keepers, store owners, service station proprietors and almost everybody who sold anything on the roads that led to their birthplace.

Over a four-month period, from June to September, 95,076 automobiles rolled their way around Dafeo hospital and some 380,304 persons stepped out for a glance at the world's most famous babes.

In June, an average of 570 cars a day stopped at the quintuplet home. The number crept to 710 a day in July and burst to a high of 1,486 a day during August. As summer left, so did the visitors, and only 329 cars a day were seen during September.

Those figures, compiled by the Ontario tourist bureau, dropped at least $74,307 into the coffers of the Ontario department of highways in the four months, and almost $1,000,000 into the pockets of the province's business men and women.

Estimates place the number of United States visitors as 95 per cent. of the total. With the nearest entrance into Canada some 300 miles from this northern Ontario village, the automobile would need at least 15 gallons of gasoline on a two-day trip. More like it took 25.

That meant 1,238,450 gallons from the pumps on the way to Callander. For every gallon, the highway department took six cents, a total of $74,307 from those below the border alone. You could add $25,000 from Canadian visitors and total almost $100,000 in just four months.

Basing the total number of visitors on four to a car, it left some $805,760 for various people such as the hotelkeeper and restaurant proprietor. It's an overnight stop from almost anywhere to Callander and back, and if your expenses run under $2.50 a person, you're thrifty.

PATTERN 5254

What more conducive to "forty winks" than this fluffy, lacy afghan! Its crocheted warmth will ward off the most treacherous draughts, its color brightens and gladdens any room it adorns. A very simple pattern to follow, too. The stripes look like tiny daisies strung together, and are in a crochet stitch which busy hands and needle soon learn to do by heart. Lovely in three shades of one color, it is also effective with each stripe a different color.

In pattern 5254 you will find directions for making the afghan; an illustration of it and of the stitches used; material requirements, and color suggestions.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —
LAWRENCE A. KEATING

There was a short silence. "Don't know why yuh think I want your scalp, Link," he complained. "Course there may be guys that do. I wouldn't go so far as to name 'em, but you know as well as I do, yuh ain't too popular with friends of Buzz Hamilton. Some of the guys are sore because yuh tried to trick 'em into that fool irrigation scheme that would cost fifty thousand bucks and wouldn't be worth a nickel. Maybe some'll blame yuh for gettin' Buzz so mad he tried that shootin' in the hotel. Can't explain how folks are apt to look at a thing," he reminded ironically.

Fleming waited. Roper moved nearer. "I need more range for my cows, Link, and your grass looks pretty good to me. Specially I need more if we have trouble about that foothill order from the government. And I reckon Uncle Sam means business. Uh—yore health might suffer from a hard winter, if we'd have one. Guys have found out before this they couldn't stand the climate here in Boone County. So I just thought I'd drop in to talk it over with yuh."

"Buyin' yuh out. Want to sell, Link?" His grin had an evil, mocking glint to it.

"Willing to sell anything I have for the right price," was the prompt answer.

Roper rubbed his hands. "Shucks! I don't half believe that guy that shot at yuh really meant to kill yuh at all. Just sort of tossed a scare, I reckon. But yore smart to heed that warnin', Link. Now about price: I'll give yuh three thousand dollars cash for yore land, cattle, and everything on the Star Loop but yore personal stuff."

Fleming rubbed his chin thoughtfully. He rose and sauntered toward the door. Opening it with care lest another ambusher's shot come whizzing through, he looked back at Kilgo.

"It would take just six times three thousand to start me considering. Now Roper, you can git!"

His face suffused with ire. His small, piggy eyes were frosty with longing for the opportunity to draw and send a bullet in his host's body. Remembrance of the "interference" with Helen Hamilton rankled fiercely, as did also thought of more than one previous clash between them.

"Fleming," he warned savagely, "yuh can't take this spread to hell with yuh. And that's where yuh may land if yuh don't pick Texas instead. I'm boss of this county, and I ain't lettin' you take my girl away from me. I want your land and I'll get it—or break yuh. Savvy?"

"I'm offerin' three thousand dollars. How about it?"

A dry, tantalizing smile creased from the corners of Link's nose to his mouth. Roper stood sideways to him in the doorway. Suddenly his booted foot rose with speed and power that gave no chance of escape.

PATENTS

There was a thud, a grunt, and Kilgo lurched forward and out onto the stoop. Curses burst from his fat lips, acrid and searing.

Link slammed the door and leaped back. He was in the nick of time. A shot roared outside, and the nose of a lead slug burrowed into view through the oak panels. Had Fleming not sprung away he would certainly have received the bullet full in the stomach, in a wound similar to that which had laid poor Buster Townsend at death's door.

Swiftly he blew out the lamp and for several moments waited in darkness. When hoofbeats sounded faintly outside he produced a match and struck it. The flame was cupped in his palms when someone pounded imperatively on the door.

"Hey, Link, open up!" He lighted the lamp, then complied. It was Wavo Byrne with another waddie close behind, their faces relaxing as they saw him.

Gosh! Heard shootin' again and thought yuh were a gonner. What was it?"

"Just a little disagreement. Kind of a warning. I'm not hurt, but it may be Roper'll have to stand in his stirrups half way to town. Did you find that rifleman?"

"Naw"—disgustedly. "We'll go after him again."

"Afraid it's no use, boys; save yourselves the trouble. Good night."

They left the room and could be heard growling as they went toward the bunkhouse. An ironic, musing smile hovered on Fleming's lips as he strolled into the kitchen and set about preparing his belated evening meal.

"Kilgo never did have much sense of humor," he muttered, measuring coffee into the pot. "I'll bet he takes this real serious, and makes trouble. Or tries to, anyhow."

CHAPTER V.

Judge Parkhill's courtroom in the ramshackle county building at Atlas was filled with interested spectators as the trial of Buzz Hamilton for attempted murder drew to a close. Punctured whose duties were light since the end of the recent roundup sat with employers equally free from the activities of summer cattle-raising. Otto Pieper, who was an attorney as well as a banker, slumped in his chair and sighed. Through the high dusty windows could be seen the season's first dribbling flakes of snow.

Link sat a few feet from Buzz, who was between Sheriff Stephen and Deputy Amos Hintz. Near him Helen Hamilton poised white-faced and tense. The trial was over; Buzz had been found guilty. Silence reigned as Judge Parkhill prepared to pass sentence.

It had been with great reluctance that Fleming testified in regard to the shooting. He tried to make it appear accidental, but as the sheriff commented cryptically, "A man don't draw on another just by accident, Yore Honor." And there had been Buster Townsend's story, brought to the courtroom in writing. Buzz, he declared, tried to kill Fleming. The jury had so decided.

"Stand before the court to have sentence passed upon you, Arnold Hamilton." Buzz rose. His thin lips twitched and his face was pale. His attitude was cringing and fearful, quite the reverse of his former aggressiveness. Judge Parkhill cleared his throat and leaned forward. He fixed stern grey eyes on the prisoner. "The jury has found you guilty of attempting to murder Lincoln Fleming. Have you anything to say?" Hamilton merely stared down at his hands.

"According to the law it is now my duty to impose sentence. It is the order of this court that you be remanded to the charge of the warden of the State Penitentiary, there to be held prisoner for three years, sentence to begin at once!"

"And when you get free, young feller," the Judge added with asperity, "I warn you to remember this county isn't wide open. The sheriff's duty is to maintain order. That means no careless handlin' of deadly weapons. Take the prisoner away!"

A rustle of whispering went around the room. "Three years!" Stephen snapped disgustedly. "Say, he should 've got ten!"

"Court adjourned!"

Spectators rose and began to file out. As Hintz jerked Buzz to his feet Helen stepped to him and threw her arms around him. There was a brief, touching exchange of whispered farewells; then the sheriff gently pushed her away. A moment later Amos accompanied Buzz out of the room. He would be started for the penitentiary at once, to be gone three years. . . .

Fleming concluded to wait outside, and took himself down the rear stairway. Pausing to build a cigarette, he heard others descend in his wake. Roper Kilgo's booming tones carried to his ears as the man sought to comfort Helen.

"—should have hid in the foothills till this was over, that's what he should have done. If Link was any kind of a friend, he would have, too. I would, yuh bet!"

"But, Roper—" "If Link wasn't on hand to speak his piece, Buzz might 've got off. Townsend ain't gonna die—he's too tough. Why didn't Fleming just stay away from the trial?"

They paused just inside while the girl donned her coat. "Helen, it looks to be like he framed this whole thing. Soak Torney may be hard on liquor, but he ain't a fool. He was primed what to say, but when he got up in front of all them men, he decided to tell the truth. He ain't showed up since. Why? Must be he's afraid something'll happen to him!"

"With that scheme spoiled, and yore Triple H the logical spread to help him pay for the plan, Link figured right off he needed to get you in charge. Buzz was wise to him, of course. So Link gets Buzz sore enough to draw. Townsend was waitin' handy to jump on him. Upshot is, yore runnin' the Triple H now, and Fleming will try to talk yuh into puttin' money in that dam he wants to build."

"But, Roper, he has no influence over me. I—"

"Been writin' yuh letters, ain't he? Got yuh sold on the proposition even before yuh got home. He knew I wouldn't let yuh join up on a loco scheme like that, nor Buzz. We're lookin' after yore welfare."

"To show I got your interest at heart," he went on impressively, "I tried to buy Link's ranch the very night you came home. So yuh wouldn't have him hangin' around, botherin' yuh. Offered him a high price, cash. He turned it down. Can you beat that?"

"How much did you offer him? Perhaps it wasn't what the place is worth."

"That collection o' buzzard meat he calls cows?" He laughed mirthlessly. "And a bunch of sandhills to feed on? I offered him twenty thousand cash. And would he take—"

Emerging through the doorway, his startled eyes found Link. "You offered me twenty thousand cash, eh, Roper? When?"

"Why—uh—" Quickly he changed his tone to a bluster. "Yuh know darn well I did!"

"That's funny. I understood you

Be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry, for anger resteth in the bosom of fools. Ecclesiastes 7:9.

Quench thou the fires of hate and strife,
The wasting fever of the heart;
From perils guard our feeble life,
And to our souls Thy peace impart.

When you are offended or annoyed by others do not suffer your thoughts to dwell thereon, or on anything relating to them, for all this is fuel and kindling of wrath, anger and hatred. Struggle diligently against your impatience, and strive to be gentle and amiable, in season and out of season, toward everyone however much they may vex and annoy you, and be sure God will bless your efforts.

The Union Jack

British Flag Is To Lose Its Ancient Redness

A sensation burst upon Britain with the discovery the imperial red of the Union Jack is to lose its ancient redness.

The change is a result of a government order substituting other dyes for those previously used to color the red bunting, in an attempt to save money.

The British color council refused to accept the resulting tint as red, saying it was a mere dirty brown or rusty color. The council insisted the traditional red, white and blue, pride of Britain for centuries, would become rust, white and blue.

Substitution of a synthetic dye for the brilliant, but costly cochineal hitherto used was decided upon by an inter-governmental technical co-ordinating committee, originally set up at the instance of the war department.

Scientist Discovers Ray That Will Make Human Body Invisible

A "ghost ray" capable of rendering the human body invisible was reported an accomplished fact with the arrival in London of Dr. Stefan Pribil, distinguished Hungarian scientist.

Dr. Pribil, it is said, stumbled on the ray by accident while experimenting with mercury vacuum lamps in his Budapest laboratory. He noticed certain objects became blurry in appearance and then faded entirely from sight when subject to rays whose exact nature he has not yet been able to determine.

Later the scientist experimented with two men. He was said to have succeeded in making them invisible for brief periods.

Consider the Cow

If your advt. were in this space as many people would read it as are reading this. But your advt. isn't here, and people do not worry whether you are selling real estate, gasoline, peanuts or popcorn.

Did you ever sit down in the pasture with a pail between your knees and wait for a cow to back up and be milked?

Of course not. You know better than that.

Well, business is somewhat like a cow. You've got to go out after it and round it up. The fellow with the milk pail between his knees may get some milk, but the odds are all in favor of the fellow who drives up the cow and feeds her.

Some kind of advertising must be done if business is to amount to anything. Either walking and talking or writing, or printing. But the least costly, most profitable and dignified way is by the regular newspaper — people pay for it. They value it and have faith in the advertisements in it.
